Interventional radiologists employ image guidance methods to gain access to the deep interstices of most organs and organ system. Through a galaxy of techniques, they can treat certain conditions percutaneously (through the skin) that might otherwise require surgery. The technology includes the use of balloons, catheters, microcatheters, stents, therapeutic embolization (deliberately clogging and blood vessel), etc.
Radiologists are specialized in using x-rays, magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), computerized tomography (CT scanning), digital subtraction angiography, ultrasound, and other imaging techniques to help physicians and surgeons in making diagnoses.

WOUND CARE & HYPERBARICS

Wound care and hyperbarics provides specialized treatment for chronic or non-healing wounds. A wound that does not respond to medical care within 30 days is considered a chronic wound. With state-of-the-art treatments available including debridement, compression therapy, infectious disease management, skin substitutes, negative pressure therapy, and hyperbaric oxygen therapy, patients with non-healing wounds now have access to the most up-to-date approaches and scientific advances in wound care therapy.
